

Gramin Bandhu: Come, Let us Help Farmers Prosper

BiofuelCircle and Gramin Bandhu

BiofuelCircle is the only online platform for farmers to easily sell their farm waste and generate steady income after every harvest. With farm waste or biomass, farmers have the opportunity to start small-scale businesses such as renting space for biomass storage, biomass transportation, and starting a briquette production facility.

Your role as Gramin Bandhu will help us promote these opportunities among farmer friends and bring them on board to benefit from the BiofuelCircle platform.

Who is Gramin Bandhu?

Gramin Bandhu, as the name suggests, is a brotherly figure who actively works for the development and economic welfare of farmers and fellow villagers. You can become a Gramin Bandhu and participate in this initiative by BiofuelCircle. This will also help you create a source of income for yourself.

What will be our role as Gramin Bandhu?

- To encourage more farmers to sell biomass (farm waste) through BiofuelCircle.
- To educate locals on how BiofuelCircle is facilitating the economic and social betterment of farmers and villages, respectively.
- To bring a maximum number of farmers/prospective entrepreneurs to the BiofuelCircle platform.
- Monitoring registered farmers by regularly getting in touch with them.
- Making monthly progress reports and sharing them with BiofuelCircle.
- Finding potential candidates to perform the following tasks

Collection and Transportation of biomass

(A person who can take responsibility for the collection of biomass from farmers in the village and transport it to the BiofuelCircle store.)

Biomass Storage

(If a person has a vacant plot, unused farmland, or landfill that can be used for biomass storage. Financial assistance* will be provided through BiofuelCircle.)

Ability to start briquettes/pellets manufacturing

(A briquette/pellet-making unit can be set up if a person has ample space, electricity, and water availability. Financial support* will be provided through BiofuelCircle.)

What is the advantage of being a Gramin Bandhu?

- Working as a Gramin Bandhu will not only give you the joy and pride of helping and developing your fellow farmers, but it will also bring you financial benefits.
- If you perform your role successfully and achieve the set target appropriate monetary incentives will be given.
